

RMMI Member Benefits

Networking Events

Monthly membership Networking Evenings, an annual golf tournament, summer event, clay sporting, 5K race and holiday party provide you the chance to network with your customers & peers

Educational Programs

24 seminars per year provide the latest information & techniques on masonry design, construction and business practices for architects, engineers and masons

Project Referrals

General contractors, architects, and owners are given member profiles in response to their need for qualified masonry subcontractors or products, and e-mails are sent to the membership requesting bids.

Technical Information & Assistance

Members and design professionals receive technical advice from both our on-staff architect and engineering consultant; technical notes, building codes, and industry literature are available to borrow or buy from RMMI's extensive library

WorkSafe Program

This program offers all member contractors regular safety training for employees, a state-certified safety program, and the opportunity to work with OSHA to refine regulations and discuss jobsite issues affecting the masonry industry

Workers' Compensation Group Dividend Insurance Program

This members-only plan offers the lowest available premiums, year-end dividends, and the services of a dedicated safety/loss control consultant for participants

Periodic Newsletter

Gives you up-to-date information on association activities, construction safety issues, and masonry design

Masonry Certification Program

This monthly continuing education program covers all aspects of masonry design, construction, and business management. Participants who successfully complete the courses and pass the exam will be certified and promoted as such to the Colorado design & development community.

Masonry Apprenticeship Program

A 2-year fully accredited Associates Degree program offered at Front Range Community College and Colorado Mountain College is available, as well as high school-level vo-tech programs for future masons.

Advertising & Promotion

RMMI actively promotes the use of masonry through trade show participation, direct mail, and box-lunch presentations to both professional and consumer audiences.
